Internal Order of Eagles Elect Officers For the Year—Jury Trial List Lets Local Jurors Down Easy. Other Notes of the News.

Special to This Courier.
SCOTSDALE Dec. 12.—There has been a custom coal mine opened at the Mary Alameda Porter farm a mile west of town and several hundred bushels of coal have already been sold to the country people about that neighborhood. The vein, a five foot thick one, is of a first class quality of coal, and a splendid burning one. Just what seam it is is a puzzle that has interested hundreds of people who have visited the place since the coal was first discovered a couple of years ago. The entrance to the mine is a long one and the ground fell in along it so that work was suspended on the mine for some months. This fall a track and a car were put in and the coal is now being brought out successfully.

SHORT TRIAL LIST.
The trial list for the Common Pleas Court at Greensburg which began on Monday and which made up the last week of the term was an exceedingly light one. The list only ran to Wednesday, and on account of attorneys interested being absent from the city on the appeal of the case of Commonwealth vs. J. J. Shilds before the Superior Court at Philadelphia several cases were continued. Among them the appeal of J. D. Kelly of Scottdale against an assessment of the viewers for street paving which was to come up on Monday. The jurors from Scottdale and East Huntingdon township for the week were: William Albright, H. W. Croushore, Ralph Fetter, Hunter Hayes, H. T. Kennell, of East Huntingdon to empanel, and Thomas J. Dickinson, A. L. Porter and Jacob Hiltnerhouse of Scottdale borough. All of them arrived home early Monday afternoon but were instructed to report the next morning.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT BOX.
Rev. H. S. Piper, the pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, has eliminated the minister as a public herald in making the church announcements at the Sunday service.

NO DYSPEPSIA; INDIGESTION, GAS OR ANY OTHER STOMACH DISTRESS.

Relief in Five Minutes
Await Every Stomach
Sufferer Here.

Nothing will remain undigested or rot in your stomach if you will take a little Dispepsia medicine. This powerful digestive and antacid, though as harmless and pleasant as candy, will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you can eat.

But what your stomach craves, without the slightest fear of indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour eructations, belching gas on stomach flatulence, headache from stomach nausea and breath water breath or a feeling like you had swallowed a lump of lead or other disagreeable miseries should you be suffering now from any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes. If you will get from your pharmacy a 50-cent box of Cape's Dispepsia you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no indigestion or sour eructations, belching gas or stomach misery all the next day, and besides, you would not need laxative or liver pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh.

Cape's Dispepsia can be obtained from your druggist and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of indigestion or dyspepsia. There is nothing better for gas on the stomach or sour eructations from the stomach or to cure a stomach headache.

You couldn't keep a handkerchief or more useful article in the house.

The News of Nearby Towns.

Mr. Pleasant.

MT. PLEASANT, Dec. 12.—Great excitement was created in the East End of town yesterday when Chief of Police Stettin arrested Charles Cummings and Hugh Stevens, Charles (nicknamed "Acme") who is serving on the jury in Greensburg this week, engaged Charles Cummings to bring him here to town and return to Acme with the horse and buggy and go to work on Wednesday's saw mill. Cummings who has more than the usual appetite for liquor, stopped for a few drinks and from Greensburg on the 11:15 car came through Stevens. Cummings hired him to help on the saw mill and with increased help saw no need of rushing home. They began to celebrate because cheerfully and finally resorted to reckless driving. Officer Stettin arrived on the scene and thinking the arm of the law a good protector, started after them. They whipped the horse and with each cut of the whip it reared high in the air. Arthur Brown hearing the noise and seeing the excitement rushed out and caught the horse and caught the horse. When Officer Stettin took Cummings and Stevens in hand. James, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Stettin, while playing in the stable with some boy friends yesterday had two fingers on his right hand caught in the gears of the corn cutter and mashed the ends off. Dr. A. W. Horner dressed the wounds.

PATRONIZE THOSE WHO

The Girl from His Town
by Marie Van Vorst
ILLUSTRATIONS by M. G. KETNER
COPYRIGHT 1910 by The Dobbie-Merrill Company

A wave of red dyed her face, and, in a tone more passionate than she had ever used to her lover, she said to Ruggles:

"I love him—I love him!" Her words sent something like a sword through the older man's heart. He said faintly: "Don't say it. He doesn't know what love means, yet."

He wanted to tell her that the girl Dan married should be the kind of woman his mother was, but Ruggles couldn't bring himself to say the words. Now, as he sat near her, he was growing so conscious that his brain was turning round. He heard her murmur:

"I told you I knew your act, Mr. Ruggles. It isn't any use."

This brought him back to his position and once more he leaned toward her and, in a different tone from the one he had intended to use, murmured:

"You don't know. You haven't any idea. I do ask you to let Dan go, that's a fact. I have got something else to propose in its place. It isn't quite the same, but it is clear—marry me!"

She gave a little exclamation. A slight smile rippled over her face like the sunset across a pool at dawn.

"Laugh," he said humbly; "don't keep in. I know I am old-fashioned as the deuce, and me and Dan is quite a contrast, but I mean just what I say, my dear."

She controlled her amusement, if it was that. "I almost made her cry with mirth, and she couldn't help it. Between laughing and crying she said to him:

"Oh, is it all for Dan's sake, Mr. Ruggles? Is it?" And then, biting her lips and looking at him out of her beautiful eyes, she said: "I know it is—I know it is—I beg your pardon."

"I asked a girl once when I was poor—too poor. Now this is the second time in my life. I mean just what I say. I'll make you a kind husband. I am fifty-five, half as fat. I dare say you have had many better offers."

"Oh, dear," she breathed; "oh, dear, please—please stop!"

"But I don't expect you to marry me for anything but my money."

Ruggles put his hand down on the edge of the table. He looked at his chair meditatively, took out his silk handkerchief, polished up his glasses, readjusted them, put them on and then looked at her.

"Now," he said, "I am going to trust you with something, and I know you will keep my secret for me. This shows you a little bit of what I think about you. Dan Blair hasn't got a red cent. He has nothing but what I give him. There's a false title to all that land on the Bentley claim. The whole thing came up when I was home and the original company, of which I own three-quarters of the stock, holds the clear title to the Blairtown mines. It all belongs now to me, if I choose to present my documents. Dan knows nothing about this—not a word."

The actress had never come up to such a dramatic point in any of her plays. With her hands folded in her lap she looked at him steadily, and he could not understand the expression that crossed her face. He heard her exclamation: "Oh, gracious!"

"I've brought the papers back with me," said the westerner, "and it is between you and me how we act. If Dan marries you I will be bound to do what old Blair would have done—cut him off—let him feel his feet on the ground, and the result of his own folly."

He had taken his glasses off while he made this assertion. Now he put them on again.

"If you give him up I'll divide with the boy and be rich enough still to hand over to my wife all she wants to spend."

She turned her face away from him and leaned her head once more upon her hands. He heard her softly murmuring under her breath, with an absent look on her face, accompanied by a still more incomprehensible smile.

"That's how it stands," he concluded.

She seemed to have forgotten him entirely, and he caught his breath when she turned about abruptly and said:

"My goodness, how Dan will hate being poor! He will have to sell all his stockpiles and his motor cars and all the things he has given me. It will be quite a little to start on, but he will hate it, he is so very smart."

"Why, you don't mean to say—"

Ruggles gasped.

And with a charming smile as she rose to put their conversation at an end, she said:

"Why, you don't mean to say that you thought I wouldn't stand by him?"

She repeated the question for her hands upon her hips with something of a defiant look at the older man, as though she just then stood by her pauperized lover.

"I thought you cared some for the boy," Ruggles said.

"Well, I am not the only one."

"You want to talk him to show it to you?"

but she said languidly: "What I want to know is, what you are going to do for Dan?"

"I told you I would share with him."

"Then he will be nearly as rich?"

"He'll have more than is good for him."

That satisfied her. Then she pursued, "I want you to stand by him. He will need you."

Ruggles lifted the hand he held and kissed it reverently. "I'll do anything you say—anything you say."

Downstairs in the Savoy, as Dan had done countless times, Ruggles waited until he saw her motor car carry her and her small luggage and Higgins away.

In their sitting-room in the Carlton a half-hour later the door was thrown open and Dan Blair came in like a madman. Without preamble he seized Ruggles by the arm.

"Look here," he cried, "what have you been doing? Tell me now, and tell me the truth, or by God, I don't know what I'll do. You went to the Savoy. You went there twice. Anyhow, where is she?"

"I am glad as was beside Ruggles' great frame shook the older man as though he had been a terror."

"Speak to me. Where has she gone?"

He stared in the westerner's face, his eyes bloodshot. "Why in thunder don't you say something?"

And Ruggles prayed for some power to untie his thickening tongue.

"You say she's gone?" he questioned.

"I say," said the boy, "that you've been meddling in my affairs with the woman I love. I don't know what you have said to her, but it's only your age that keeps me from striking you. Don't you know?" he cried, "that you are spoiling my life? Don't you know that?"

A torrent of feeling coming to his lips, he snatched at the tears rolled down his face. He walked away into his own room, remained there a few moments, and when he came out again he carried in his hand his valise, which he put down with a bang on the table.

"Now, can you tell me what you've done or not?"

"Dan," said Ruggles with difficulty, "if you will sit down, a moment, we can talk."

The boy laughed in his face. "Sit down?" he cried. "Why, I think you must have lost your reason. I have chartered a motor car out there and the damned thing has burst a tire and they are fixing it up for me. It will be ready in about two minutes and then I am going to follow wherever she has gone. She crossed to Paris, but I can get there before she can even with this damned accident. But, before I go, I want you to tell me what you said."

"Why," said Ruggles quietly, "I told her you were poor, and she turned you down."

His words were faint.

"God!" said the boy under his breath. "That's the way you think about truth. Lie to a woman to save my precious soul! But I expect," he said, "you think she is so immoral and so bad that she will hurt me."

"Why, I think you are a fool," said the boy, "and as far as she is concerned, I don't care what she marries me for. She has got to marry me, and if she doesn't—"

He had no idea, in his passion, what he was saying or how.

"Why, I think I'll kill you first," said the boy, "and then blow my own brains out!"

And with these mad words he grabbed up his valise and bolted from the room, and Ruggles could hear his running feet tearing down the corridor.

To Be Continued.

A Physician's Report on Tuberculosis Medicine

"Have used Eckman's Alternative in several cases of tubercular glands of the neck with excellent result every time. In one case it cost me $50. for the girl came to be operated, and in a short time an operation was not needed. I suppose your records are just as fine as of old. You know my faith in it."

Eckman's Alternative is effective in other forms. Read what Mrs. Garvin says:—

"Gentlemen: I have gained twenty-two pounds since last February and my baby is in perfect health. She is now four months old. I have been waiting since she was born to see how I would get along. I am now doing all my work, old, and I am steadily gaining. I do not cough or raise anything at all. I believe in your medicine is cured."

A Scene from "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary."

THE SOISSON.

"REJUVENATION OF AUNT MARY." Helen Lowell won immediate recognition for her excellent portrayal of eccentric characters, first as "Miss Hazy" in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" and then as "Lizzie" an exceptionally funny part in "The Lottery Man." The artistic ability displayed in this gifted actress is an achievement that is exceptional. When Mary Robson decided to produce a new play she appointed Miss Lowell as a worthy successor to assume the role of "Aunt Mary." There is nothing impossible in the story of the play which is entirely free from coarseness, and vulgarities. In a word, a simple play that never wearies, but always sustains a wholesome interest, and if you wish to enjoy a hearty laugh, every five minutes attend the Soloson theatre, Wednesday, Dec. 13, and visit "Aunt Mary."

"THE CHAMPAGNE BELLES." "The Champagne Belles" will be seen Thursday, Dec. 14, at the Soloson theatre, with gaiety and frivolities galore, a host of funny fellows, a score of gits, songs and music in endless quantity and last but not least the kind of comedy that causes laughter, yes, that makes some a scream, this aggregation will hold forth one big "frolic." It is the fastest and liveliest show of its kind on tour.

"A PAIR OF COUNTRY KIDS." "A Pair of Country Kids" is not a St. El or Josh play with a farmer band or demost, who in addition to the play, will introduce ten musical numbers and specialties. The engagement is for matinee and night at the Soloson theatre, Saturday, Dec. 15.

GOALIES TONIGHT.
Washington at South Side.
Charleroi at Johnstown.

Washington lost its 15th straight contest last night. The Cokers were the smallest of the season and the smallest of the season. The contest was interesting, exciting at times, and decidedly amusing. "Bush" began was the star of the performance, with Pickells—one of the 67—the clown. Pickells contributed to a large proportion of the 61 fouls referee Alton found it necessary to call during the evening. He was finally ejected from the game because his language was indecent and boisterous. In the first scrimmage, started a hellu encounter with Cavanaugh, which Alton, fortunately for Washington did not see.

Captain Dark decided to give Billy Kummer a rest. As a result the first half ended 23-24 in favor of the Cokers and in the first six minutes of the second half Washington scored two field goals. Arts and Brady being the lucky shots, and took a 24-28 lead. Right there Captain Kido took no more chances, chased "Pluggie" Doherty and Steve White to the dressing room and brought Egolf and Kummer into play. After that it was a procession, with Egolf and Kummer in the leading parts. Washington got five points on fouls after Egolf and Kummer entered, but could not score otherwise.

The first half the teams were even on field goals, seven each, but Dark outshot both Brady, who has returned to the Central league fold, and Harold Snyder, on the free line.

The Washington team plays an aggressive game. The youngsters are clever puffers and dribblers and are not afraid to mix in the scrimmages. They are fast and with a few changes are due to win a game before long. They put up a far more interesting contest than either Charleroi or South Side on the occasion of their recent visits. Brady and Arts captured the honors for fancy shots, performing brilliantly in this department. Brady made one goal in the first half that was a thriller. It was all begins in the first half. Dark and Cavanaugh dividing the remaining two field goals between them. In the second half Kummer and Dark got a pair each.

Snyder has faster bucketball than seen here than at the start of the second half. Captain Dark played a splendid floor game and really put up the best game he has yet played this season. The lineup:

CONNELLSVILLE 54; WASHINGTON 29.
Dark left forward Arts
White left forward B. Snyder
Cavanaugh center Pickells
Doherty right guard H. Snyder
Beggs left guard Brady
Substitutions—Kummer (11) for White (29); Egolf for Doherty (29);
Boish (3) for Pickells (27).

Field Goals—Dark 3—Brady 3;
White 0; Kummer 2—H. Snyder; Cavanaugh 1—Pickells 0; Boish 2; Beggs 3—Arts 4; Doherty 0; Egolf 2—B. Snyder 1.

Foul Goals—Dark 8 out of 20; White missed one; Kummer 11 out of 14; Brady 7 out of 13; H. Snyder 4 out of 11.

Score first half—Cokers 23; Washington 20.

Referee—Alton.

NOTES.
It should be pretty clearly demonstrated by this time that South Side Charleroi and Washington are following us drawing cards. Why not admit the ladies free, or the kids for 15 cents to some of those contents? It might develop new patrons whose support would come in handy.

"Pluggie" Doherty had hard luck. He never played a better game but his shots simply refused to go through the net. It was one night the "break" were not coming "Pluggie's" way.

Steve White is another Coker who played a mighty clever game yet failed to have any luck. It was discouraging the way some of his tries missed by a hair.

Watch Egolf. The Reading youth is getting faster every game he plays. He is a hard worker, good guard, and mighty clever floor man. There are several teams in the league that could be materially strengthened with Egolf as a regular player, but his services are far too valuable to be dispensed with by the Cokers.

Pickells figured prominently in the fouling. Of the six double fouls called, he counted in all. His rag chewing was a feature.

Beggs was dropping them in from all angles. It was a great night for "Bush," and he didn't let his opponent take too many liberties, either.

Billy Kummer made some pretty exhibition shots between the halves. Likewise during the second stanza. Captain Dark wanted to give Billy a rest last night but decided to take no chances when the score became too close.

The Sporting Editor isn't a good mathematician. Charlie Furbaugh's adding machine shows Kummer leading Adams by three points.

The Cokers have another easy week ahead of them, three games being scheduled. Unfortunately, they have the habit of doing better with lots of work on hand. The worst trial will come Friday, when Uniontown plays here. Needless to say every effort will be made to annex a victory at the expense of the Seafarers.

HOLIDAY PREPARATIONS CHRISTMAS SHOPPING.

During the early part of this month, the Union Supply Company stores are dressed in full holiday attire. The stores will be decorated and the Christmas goods will be displayed, and everything possible to assist our customers in their holiday shopping, will be done. The Christmas fixings will be numerous and novel in the woman's and misses' furnishing department. Nice new designs in neckwear, shirt waists, sweaters, hosiery, handkerchiefs, millinery, furs and in fact, every sort of garment you want. Do your Christmas shopping early; there are several inducements for it. First, you have large and better lines to select from; second, you have more time; third, you get better attention. Fourth, you get the goods early, delivered to you whenever you want them. Avoid the last hour's rush!

THE CHRISTMAS TOY DEPARTMENT.

It is not too early to talk about the Christmas toys; in fact we are selling a great many now. We want to call attention to our large lines this season. This toy department is growing annually and it has reached a point now, that we consider it one of our most important departments. The goods on display in this department now, were purchased months ago; many have been made especially for us. It is a regular toyland, fairyland, candy shop; steam engines, electric motors, fire engines, flying machines, trains, walking horses, barking dogs, talking dolls, sleeping dolls. We haven't the time or space to enumerate the many novelties; they will all be on display early this month, and we advise that you go early to look them over, and make your purchases. Take the children along. We welcome them to our stores; the displays are largely for the benefit and amusement of the children.
